PACHMANN DIES SUDDENLY

ECCENTRIC GENIUS OF THE PIANO

WORLD-FAMOUS AS CHOPIN PLAYER

Rome, Jan. 8. Pachmann, Vladimir suddenly to-day in his eightypianist. fifth year. He caught a chill which developed rapidly into pneumonia.

He was a concert celebrity for over afty years, his chief claim to fame being his brilliantly distinctive interpretations

Chopin's works. Born at Odessa in July, 1848, Vladimir Pachmann was the son of Vicent de Pachmann, an Austrian Professor of Roman Law and a musical amateur of great ability, who had been on terms of great friendship with Beethoven and Weber.

BEGAN AT SIX.

At the age of 6 young Vladimir began to learn the violin and from then until he was ten he was given continuous instruction by his father on that instrument as well as in harmony and thoroughbass. In 1858, as he felt drawn to the pinno, he began to study it, still under his father's guidance, and practised assiduously. At the age of eighteen he was sent to the Conservatoire at Vienna where he remained for two years, hi masters being Professor J. Dachs (pinne) and Professor Brunckner (Counter-point). He took the first prize, a gold medal, for proficiency on the piano, and in 1869 returned to Russia. At Odessa, Pachmann gave his first recitals under the patronage of the local aristocracy and these were, a great success. About the same time he met Carl Tausig, the great planist, by whose marvellous technique he was so impressed that he abandoned public performances for some time and devoted himself to further practice and study.

VIENNA TRIUMPH.

In 1878, he went to Leipzig where he played wih great success at the celebrated Gewandhaus concerts under Carl Reinecke and also gave numerous recitals. He felt, however, that there was still something to acquire and accordingly returned to Vienna and resigned himself to further study. Yielding at length to the requests of Prince Hohenlohe and others, he reappeared at Bosenderfer's Salon in January 1882, all the musical notabilities of Vienna being present. .

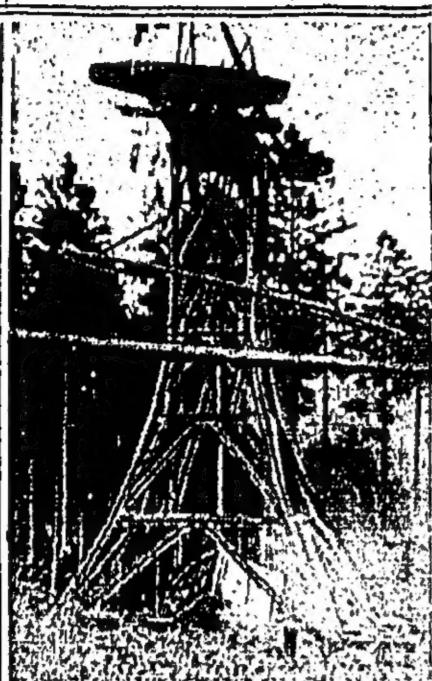

From Vienna he went to Paris and gave two recitals at the Salle Erard in April, 1882. In the same year he went to England and made his first appearance at one of Ganz's orchestral concerts at the St. James's Hall, the late Duke of Edinburgh, a keen music-lover being present.

HAILED BY CRITICS.

He was hailed by the principal critics as a consummate player of Chopin and it is as an exponent of that composer's music that he was best known and appreciated. After a long tour through England, Scotland and Ireland he went to Austria-Hungary and at a concert in Budapest was publicly embraced by Liszt after his performance of one of Chopin's sonatas. In April, 1884, Pachmann married Miss Maggie Oakey, also an accomplished planist, hailing from Australia, but the marriage was dissolved and the lady afterwards became the wife of Maitre Labori, who defended Dreyfus. Pachmann then made extended tours all over Europe and America, confining his programme almost exclusively to Chopin.

ECCENTRIC GENIUS.

His great popularity was not entirely due to his wonderful playing. Pachmann was an eccentric genius and was wont to accompany his renderings of Chopin by little asides to the audience to whose attention he directed either the special beauty of certain Cold Feet Prevent Warm Smiles.

Cold feet undermine your morale terribly. If you only their High Quality realise it, chic depends on a sound, firm foundation. Foot comfort is often the basis of a winning smile.

Hot floors are the cause of a lot of foot trouble. The solution to this problem lies in hardening your feet against swelling and over aensitiveness. Cold foot baths, foot baths with medicinal soaps prepared for just this purpose and right of foot pose, salt rubs and plenty of foot exercise barefooted in your own room—these are some procautions that every woman who knows she has feet should take.

The best foot exercises consist in stretching all the muscles that are not given enough exercise in walking.

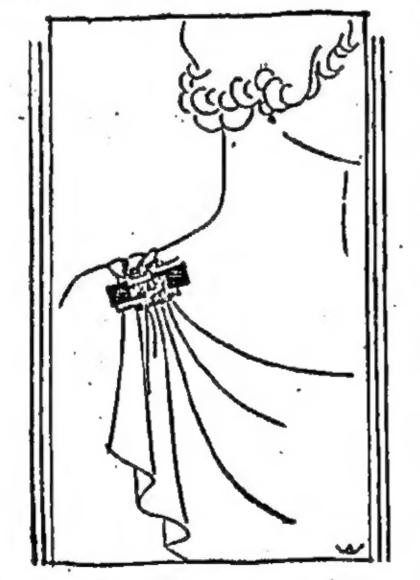

Imagine that you are a child wriggling your toes gleefully in a nice squashy mud puddle. Just try to squeeze all the mud up between your toes, turn your feet this way and that to kick it up over your insteps, grind your heels down into it. PRINCE'S APPEAL, FOR UNEMPLOYED.

URGENT NEED IN NATIONAL EMERGENCY

/ London, Jan. 7. In a broadcast talk last night, $10.00. the Prince of Wales renewed his earlier appeals for support' on behalf of the National Council of Social Service, which is organising voluntary efforts to find useful occupations and suitable recreation to fill the time of the unemployed. The Prince recalled that during the Great War, which by no means everybody was agreed on in principle, all co-operated to the full because it was a time of national emergency. That was precisely what had to be dealt with now-national emergency.

He described his special visits to industrial and rural areas throughout . England, where he saw for himself work being done by and on behalf of the unemployed, and expressed the greatest possible admiration for the way in which many of those might well be discouraged by prolonged unemployment, were refusing to be idle. A great deal of experimental work had been set on foot during the past year and anyone with a good now idea should not be shy of putting it to the test. The Prince referred in detail to the brackets. educational, recreational and useful work which many of the unemployed had undertaken to fil their otherwise idle hours .-British, Wireless.

MUCH BELOW TREATY STRENGTH

The annual report of the U.S. Secretary for the Navy shows how the present American building programme fails to provide the HEAVIER AND MORE COSTLY naval strength permitted by the Treaty of London.

Naval expenditure for the fiscal year 1932 is given as $358,628,362 1933 amount to $331,762,731.

There were, on July I last seven heavy cruisers, one aircraft carrier, three submarines, and five destroyers under construction. YACHT

Time-keeper Presented with Cigarette Case.

PLEASING, FUNCTION.

A pleasing function took place at the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club on Saturday afternoon, when Chief Yeoman of Signals J.F. Kelsall, who has been the Official Time-keeper the Club for the past two years, was the recipient of a silver cigarette case, presented to him by the Commodore (Mr. A.L. Shields) on the occasion of his sailing for Home on Saturday

In making the presentation, Mr Shields' paid a warm tribute to the work done by Mr. Kelsall, and said that the Yacht Club had been very fortunate in having the services of Chief Yeoman Kelsall and his prodecessors who had taken a keen interest in the timing and working of handicaps. He hoped the cigarette case would be a souvenir of his sojourn in the Colony, and that he would revisit the Club if chance should bring him again to the China Station.

Mr. Kelsall suitably replied.

"This is what you must find out. Linda." Tom spoke quickly and seriously. "What happened be tween him and Cousin Amos wher he stopped on his way downstairs last night? Why was he so standoffish at the dance even to you". Did he go to bed as soon as he went to his room this morning? How did he happen to hear you fall and not hear Cousin Amos and the ruction before that?"

Tom looked at his watch. "Statlander will be down any moment, Binks. Stay here if you can till we are through. You're in plain sight from the house and the kitchen and the bay. Not that I think anything will happen, but it's just as well- I've locked Cousin Amos' room-locked the casement from inside and then the door into the hall. No one could get in either from the hall or from the balcony. Later we must look in there in case there's any evidence, but don't let anyone else go in. And if anyone asks to, on any excuse, be sure to tell me. But above all, don't go off the place! That's serious, Linda!"

LOCAL WEDDING.

MISS EILEEN LAMMERT AND MR. J. E. HENRY

A pretty wedding of considerable local interest took place on Saturday afternoon in the Chapel of St. John's Cathedral, when Miss Eileen Joyce Lammert, youngest daughter of Mr. George P. Lammert, a well-known resident of Hongkong, became the bride of Mr. James Edward Henry, the Hongkong manager of Messra. Reuters. Ltd., who is the second son of Mr. Malcolm Henry and Mrs. Henry. The Very Rov. Dean Swann officiated.

The bride, who was not attended by a bridesmaid, was riven away by her father, and looked charming in a dress of only four tricks to go game at peach-mastic peau d'ange, in heats and five at clubs. Princess lines, with a nun-like neckline (high in front) and long tight siceves with fullness at the elbows; the whole offset with a tulic veil in the same tint as the dress, coming from a pear cap. The dress had a short train: The bridal bouquet was an attractive one composed of pale pink roses. Mr. G. P. Ferguson was the

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The most valuable instrument of the contract bridge bidder is the forcing bid.

As I have explained in my preways of applying forcing bids.

When the forcing principle was first adopted by contract bridge players, it received a great deal of abuse. Any player who picked up a fair hand immediately felt that he had to force in order to

.The bid that received the greatwithin the first year of joining est amount of abuse was, without n doubt, the original forcing two The Police tragedy at Lokma- bid, or the game demand bid.

There are two types of original game demand bids in the one over For the pluck and zeni he one system—the original suit bid

These two bids differ mainly in this respect—an original two The deceased was transferred bid asks partner's assistance in

The three bid, while forcing in

An original forcing bid in the one over one system is used to indicate a hand that will go game regardless of the fact that your partner's hand may be trickless. It is not necessary to open with a forcing bid unless you have this powerful hand.

You can open with any of the one bids, which show a very good hand, and partner will keep the bidding open if he has any semblance of a trick. Use your original forcing bids to Indicate to partner an absolute game, and a probable slam if he has anything.

An original forcing bld must not contain over two losing cards if made in a minor suit, and three losing cards when made in a major suit. For example, if you

-Spades—A-K Hearts-A-K-Q-x-x Diamonds—10 Clubs—K-Q-J-x-x

You can expect to lose the ace of clubs, the ace of diamonds, and either a heart or a club. You have a right to expect one of those two suits to break.

If you have a major suit in the hand, this hand meets the requirements of a forcing two bid. Not only are you sure of game but there is a probable slam if your partner holds either the ace of clubs or the ace of diamonds.

Your first bid should be two boarts. If partner responds with two no trump, you would then show three clubs, and if partner's hand does not have normal support in either of those suits, his response would be three no trump, showing that he has no particular preference for either of your bids.

Your next bid should then be four hearts to show a decided preference for hearts, since it takes

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Mystery and the modern age, an amazing dramatic twist wherein the heroine in faced with a choice between her own honour or the death of her brother, and a courtroom sequence that sets a new mark for dramatic suspense, figure in "Unashamed," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama which will open on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law," Trial of Mary Dugan" and other noted stage plays of the mystery type, wove a strange, gripping story, and Helen Twelvetrees, Robt. Young, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt , John Miljan, Monroe Owseley, Robert Warwick, Gertrude Michael and others in an elborate cast eract its characters under the direction of Harry Bonument. The story deals with a millionaire's daughter with too much freedom and an intense affection for her younger brother. She becomes infatuated with a fortune hunter. Her father refuses the marriage. To force consent, the lovers go to a hotel together and threaten a scandal. The brother shoots the lover and goes on trial. Then, in an amazing dramatic climax the girl ascriffees her reputation—to save him from the executioner. The dramatic highlights include her remarkable story before the fury, the gripping scene between the fortune hunter and his old father, the deadly quarrel and shooting in the millionaire's mansion, the plea of the boy's finnece to the sister who refuses to save him, and the final amazing framatic climax. Spectacular settings include the first modernistic courtroom in a talking picture. Several hundred people take part in the action in this vivid sequence. ----

PRINCE'S APPEAL FOR UNEMPLOYED.

URGENT NEED IN NATIONAL EMERGENCY.

London, Jan. 7. In a broadcast talk last night, the Prince of Wales renewed his carlier appeals for support on behalf of the National Council of Social Service, which is organising voluntary efforts to flud usoful occupations and suitable recreation to fill the time of the unemployed. The Prince recalled that during the Great War, which by no means everybody was agreed on in principle, all co-operated to the full because it was a time of national emergency. That was precisely what had to be dealt with now-national emergency.

Ho described his special visits to industrial and rural areas throughout England, where he saw for himself work being done by and on behalf of the unemployjed, and expressed the greatest possible admiration for the way in which many of those might well be discouraged by prolonged unemployment, were refusing to be idle. A great deal of experimental work had been set on foot during the past year and anyone with a good new idea should not be shy of putting it to the test. The Prince referred in detail to the brackets. educational, recreational and useful work which many of the unemployed had undertaken to fill their otherwise idle hours .-British, Wireless.

EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT AT PENINSULA

In recognition of Dr. Jose Rizal, Filipino patriot, the Filipino community of Hongkong held its annual concert and dance at the Peninsula Hotel last night. recent years the event has come to be regarded as one of the rare musical treats of the year, and last night's entertainment exceeded all previous efforts.

The large increase in the Colony's orchestras recently enabled a 40-piece combination to assemble, comprised entirely of members of the Filipino Club and a particularly ambitious programme was excellently rendered. Among the many numbers were the overture to Mendelssohn's "Athalia," Massenet's suite of "Scenes Pittoresques," Dvorak's Slavonic Dance No. 3, and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 1. There were in addition. Beveral tries and instrumental numbers.

Among the vocalists were Mr. G. F. d'Aquino, Miss A. Silos and Jose A. del Prado. Prof. F. Gonzalez and Prof. C. de la Cruz conducted the orchestral items. Other soloists were Mesers. A. Asinas, E. The Bishop took as his 'text "We are no more servants, but sons," and "Christ divested Himself of His Glory and came embodled as a son." Modern science, he said, did not drive out faith in-God. We must be servants or sons, and in the top storey of man's soul was the sure belief in God's fatherhood, in the ordering of the world, and a rejection of blind causation without design.

Subsequently, a reception was held in the Chruch Hall, when members of the congregation were introduced to the Bishop.

The Vicar, after welcoming the |dent. Bishop, said that they were sure in him they would find a true lender not only of the English Church in this Colony, but also of the great and growing Church of China. They wished to assure the Bishop that in every way they ORDERS FOR THE CURRENT were with him and would give him their whole-hearted support. The Bishop, in reply said that it greatly heartened him to feel that St. Andrew's congregation had made him one of themselves. That was what he wished. Bishop Hall appealed again to all friends to "pass the time of day" when they saw him and to forgive him if he failed to remember them personally. Friendship of this kind would be a real help to him.

BIOLOGY IN THE SCHOOLS

CIVILISATION EVOLUTION

At the British conference on the place of biology in education. the importance of biology as the basis of a sociological and cultural education was given as the chief reason for the extension of the teaching of biology in schools. Hitherto the value of biology in its applications in - medicine, agriculture, hygiene, etc., has generally been regarded as the justification for biological courses,

An impressive group of public men, civil servants, and scientists appeared on the platform to plead for more biology in education. Viscount Chelmsford, Sir Stephen Tallents, Sir Walter Fletcher, Sir William Hardy, Professor A. V. Hill, and other speakers showed that they were concerned with the world's present social crisis, and were looking to biology to give youth a biological outlook which would improve their human understanding, so that inter-racial and other difficulties might be resolved. After the social motive, the cul-

Professor Hill contended that as human beings are living beings. they themselves and their society could not be understood without biology. Civilisation, he said was a product of a certain sort of biological organism, ourselves, and was therefore a biological entity. Consequently, civilisation tural value of biology was stress-

was incomprehensible without a knowledge of biology.

A Pressing Need. The Rev. S. A. McDowall opened a discussion on the methods of teaching biology. He is the biology master at Winchester College, and spoke on the problem as he saw it in a public school. He stated his belief that while the supply of suitable par), while appropriations for biology courses was one of the most pressing needs in public schools, these courses should come late in the general science course. The boy was human and most humanly interested in his body: he was also humanly rational and wanted to know something of his mind and its place in the universe. He wanted to know something of the functions of digestion, respiration, and secretion. Such a course required a previous study of physics and chemistry, and a fairly developed mind. For this reason blology was not a suitable subject for school certificate examinations.

Dr. R. H. Crawley, Senior Medical Officer of the Board of Education, related the teaching of biology in elementary schools with public health. New health education, he said, was no simple matwithout being grounded in biology. The contemporary discussions of sex-teaching in schools were really a result of the failure to teach biology properly. Every child who left school at fourteen years of age should have a clear knowledge of the function of sex in animals, plants, and himself.

Mr. D. Ward Cutler, biologist to the Rothamsted Experimental Station, argued that biology lent itself to interesting teaching, especially for young children. They were usually interested in animals, and this interest might be used as the foundation for sound teaching. It was necessary to realise that human beings were the product of evolution, and that their nature was based on animal nature. No child should leave school without knowing this. When the relation of human and animal nature was understood the pupil came to see that evolution and civilention were a product of

PLEASING FUNCTION.

A pleasing function took place at the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club on Saturday afternoon, when Chief Yeoman of Signals J.F. Kelsall, who has been the Official Time-keeper, of the Club for the past two years, was the recipient of a silver eigarette case presented to him by the Commodore (Mr. A.L. Shields) on the occasion of his sailing for Home on Saturday

In making the presentation, Mr. Shields paid a warm tribute to the work done by Mr. Kelsall, and said that the Yacht Club had been very fortunate in having the services of Chief Yeoman Kelsall and his prodecessors who had taken a keen interest in the timing and working of handlenps. He hoped the cignrette case would be a souvenir of his sojourn in the Colony, and that he would revisit the Club if chance should bring him again to the China Station.

DEATH OF YOUNG POLICE OFFICER

The death occurred yesterday morning at the Victoria Hospital of Lance Sergeant D.H. Williams following an attack of malaria with pneumonia.

Born in County Dawn, Ireland, the late Sergt. Daniel Hill Williams was a Lanco Sergeant in the Irish Guards before he arrived in the Colony on April 26, 1928, after enlistment in the local Police Force. His earlier military training stood him in good stead and after quickly qualifying as a Lewis and Thompson gunner he went out on regular Police duties. He passed his examinations in Hindustani and Cantonese, and within the first year of joining est amount of abuse was, without was promoted Lance Sergeant.

LOCAL WEDDING.

MISS EILEEN LAMMERT AND MR. J. E. HENRY

A pretty wedding of considerable local interest took place on Saturday afternoon in the Chapel of St. John's Cathedral, when Miss Eileen Joyce Lammert, youngest daughter of Mr. George P. Lammert, a well-known resident of Hongkong, became the bride of Mr. James Edward Henry, the Hongkong manager of Messrs. Reuters. Ltd., who is the second son of Mr. Malcolm Henry and Mrs. Henry. The Very Rev. Dean Swann officiated.

The bride, who was not attended by a bridesmaid, was riven away by her father, and looked charming in a dress of only four tricks to go game a neach-mustic peau d'ange, in heats and five at clubs. Princess lines, with a nun-like neckline (high in front) and long tight sleeves with fullness at the elbows; the whole offset with a tulle veil in the same tint as the dress, coming from a pear cap. The dress had a short train. The bridal bouquet was an attractive one composed of pale pink roses. Mr. G. P. Ferguson was the

Mrs. Henry's going-away costume was a blue wool French tailored suit, with round steel buttons on the coat up to the neck, and she wore a smart cloche hat to match, and accessories also to match the costume.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The most valuable instrument of the contract bridge bidder is the forcing bid.

As I have explained in my previous articles, the one over one bidding system has a great many ways of applying forcing bids.

When the forcing principle was first adopted by contract bridge players, it received a great deal of abuse. Any player who picked up a fair hand immediately felt that he had to force in order to convey his message to partner.

The bid that received the greata doubt, the original forcing two The Police tragedy at Lokma- bid, or the game demand bid.

There are two types of original game demand bids in the one over For the pluck and zeal he one system—the original suit bid

These two bids differ mainly in this respect—an original two The deceased was transferred bid asks partner's assistance in

An original forcing bid in the one over one system is used to indiente a hand that will go game regardless of the fact that your partner's hand may be trickless. It is not necessary to open with a forcing bid unless you have this powerful hand.

You can open with any of the one bids, which show a very good hand, and partner will keep the bidding open if he has, any semblance of a trick. Use your original forcing bids to indicate to partner an absolute game, and a probable slam if he has anything. An original forcing bid must not contain over two losing cards if made in a minor suit, and three losing cards when made in a major suit. For example, if you held the following hand:

Spades—A-K Hearts-A-K-Q-x-x Diamonds-10 Clubs-K-Q-J-x-x

You can expect to lose the ace of clubs, the ace of diamonds, and either a heart or a club. You have a right to expect one of those two suits to break.

If you have a major suit in the hand, this hand meets the requirements of a forcing two bld. Not only are you sure of game but there is a probable slam i your partner holds either the ace of clubs or the ace of diamonds.

Your first bid should be two hearts. If partner responds with two no trump, you would then show three clubs, and if partner's hand does not have normal support in either of those suits, his response would be three no trump, showing that he has no particular preference for either of your bids. Your next bid should then be four hearts to show a decided pre-Ference for hearts, since it takes
